Day 2

In the morning you may visit the Gandan lamasery, centre of the Buddhist revival in Mongolia. The Mongols follow the Tibetan version of Lamaism, the Dalai Lama being the theological leader.

Later you depart the city, and gradually the Mongolian landscape unfolds before your eyes. By the time you come to the Hadan Hoshuu steppes valley, there are no traces of civilization. Another world exists here as the nomads, with their horses, gers and livestock, make use of the summer pasture.

After a picnic lunch, continue your journey across the forested Zamtiin Pass and into the Upper Tuul River Valley until you reach your camp at Bosgo Meadows, beside the Tuul River. You meet the horses and the yak carts here. You spend two nights in this camp.

Overnight Bosog Meadows Camp.

Day 3

Your first day's ride takes you on the southern side of the Tuul River, up the valleys and through forests, onto the ridges with stunning panoramic views of the southernmost Siberian forests as it transitions to Mongolian Steppe. You ride alongside the yak carts downstream along the tiny Baruunbayan until you come to the large meadows by the Tuul River. You cross the Tuul River on horseback while the yak carts heads straight for our Bosog Meadows. The ride continues along the valleys and ridges of the southern side of the Tuul river before returning to camp at Bosog Meadows.

Overnight Bosog Meadows Camp.

Day 4

In the morning the entire camp is packed up and loaded onto the yak carts.

You ride north toward the Khentii Mountains, across the forested ridge into the next valley, the Baruunbayan. You separate from the yak carts to ride a scenic route to camp by the Baruunbayan River for the next two nights.

Overnight Baruunbayan River Camp.

Day 5

Today is a full day's ride takes you to Gunjin Sum, a ruined temple hidden in the forest. Return to camp for a second night.

Overnight Baruunbayan River Camp.

Day 6

For the final time, camp is packed up onto the yak carts and you ride along with them for a while. Again you then separate from the yak carts to ride up the partly forested ridges. Most of the trees are larch, however on some of the ridges there are larger patches of pine and there is a real possibility to come across the rare Black-billed Capercaillie and the more common Black Grouse. Finally arrive at your ger camp, next to the Zuunbayan River, a tributary of the Tuul River.

You spend two nights at this camp.

Overnight Zuunbayan River Camp.

Day 7

A day riding up towards the tree line of the Khentii Mountains, with spectacular scenery and views in all directions.

Day 8

Today you say goodbye to the herders and their yak carts. You ride back to the Sharlburg Valley crossing the uppermost parts of the Tuul River before reaching the small ger camp at Jalman Meadows.

Overnight Jalman Meadows Wilderness Camp. Jalman Meadows Ger Camp is remotely located in the uppermost parts of the Tuul River Valley within the Khan Khentii Strictly Protected Area. It is set in a beautiful pasture teeming with wildflowers in the summer.

The entire camp is designed to be low impact with a focus on sustainability. The camp is fully collapsible and at the end of the season can be dismantled and no evidence remain of its existence. The toilets are long drop style. Showers are housed in small gers with the water being heated on a wood burning stove.

The gers at Jalman Meadows have made up beds and each has a stove for warmth on cold nights.

Day 9

A full day to enjoy the setting of Jalman Meadows Ger Camp. You can choose this day to do a full or half day ride. Alternatively you may prefer to relax in the ger library with books on Genghis Khan and contemporary Mongolia; or with a riverside sauna. It is also possible to replace the ride with a raft float downstream.
