

Ant's Hill Lodge Stay, South Africa

After breakfast the typical daily itinerary at Ants Hill is a morning ride or other activity returning to the lodge for lunch followed by a late afternoon ride/activity.

The itinerary is flexible to suit everyone staying and taking into account the weather and whether anything is going on in the reserve such as a game capture or release. There are normally always game drives, bush walks as well as rides available.

Over dinner you discuss with your guide or the lodge manager the activities you would like to take part in the following day.

Accommodation

Ant's Hill

Ant's Hill can take sixteen guests. The lodge is built on the edge of a gorge and offers breath-taking views across the reserve. The main lodge has a large sitting room and dining room with views of the gorge and large bi-folding doors which are open in summer. In winter they can be closed creating a cosy area around a roaring fire. Close to the main lodge and set in boulders on the edge of the cliff there is an swimming pool which cascades over the lip of the gorge.

At certain times of the year it is possible to book the cottage rooms separately from one another. This means that guests in either room need to be willing to share the common areas.

All the rooms and cottages at Ant's Hill are spacious with their own verandas and huge sofas covered in large cushions.

Eagles' Nest is a large bedroom in the central lodge; Lookout is a lovely cottage nearby; Hideaway is a secluded cottage with a private plunge pool; Family Cottage has two bedrooms; and the stunning Worlds View cottage has two bedrooms and its own plunge pool.

Some of the rooms do not have doors separating the bathroom and bedroom so friends sharing should bear this in mind.
