Below is an example of a typical week's riding holiday. This may vary depending on local conditions and the ability of the group, but always with your best interests in mind.

The normal pattern (weather permitting) is to set off at about 10:00 and stop for lunch at a local village bar and then ride on again in the afternoon. However, the introductory ride is usually shorter in duration.

The order of the day might also change and beach riding is always subject to the tide conditions.

Los Alamos is set in the Hacienda "Jacaranda", named after the beautiful Jacaranda trees. The accommodation is in set in private gardens of palm, cactus and fruit trees.

The pool at Los Alamos

There is plenty of space for relaxing with a good book or just sun-bathing. There is also a large swimming pool (not heated).

Your hosts Andrew and Rhiannon also live in a villa in the grounds.

Day 2

After breakfast at the villa, meet at the stables (a short walk away from the villa) where you will be introduced to your horse.

Set off into the forest for your first ride - today is a fairly quiet ride giving rider and horse the opportunity to get to know one another. Wind along old drovers' tracks, through the heart of the National Park. Visit a local bar for lunch, then continue riding, arriving back at Los Alamos mid-afternoon.

Riding through the Umbrella Pines

On arrival the guides will untack your horse and you can help washing the bit and bridle. The rest of the afternoon is for you to relax before meeting for dinner at around 19:30.

Day 3

Christmas Day.

Start the day with a champagne stirrup cup at the stables and then meander down through sweet smelling pine forest to the historic beaches of Cape Trafalgar. Stop for drinks at the thatched tavern of Las Dunas. Perhaps try one of their famous Wobbly Hot chocolates (made with Baileys) before heading back along the forest tracks towards Los Alamos. Return for a traditional Christmas dinner with all the trimmings along with complimentary champagne and drinks.
